Short Description

PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE OF MANAGEMENT

case study

Description

Based on Hollywood blockbuster Troy, this case study helps in studying various leadership styles. In the backdrop of the Trojan War, the case study highlights the leadership styles of the protagonists – Agamemnon, Achilles, Hector, Priam and Odysseus. While there were several leaders in the Trojan War, each with a distinct leadership style, which is the best leadership style, is debatable. For leaders in various organizations; which is the best leadership style for them? Moreover, what works best for an organization may not work for the other. Further, what defines the enduring impact of a leader – style or substance? Instances of the Trojan War captured in the case study give an introduction to the various leadership styles, provide a clue about the appropriate leadership styles for organizations and help ponder on Henry Fayol's theory of 'subordination of individual interest to general interest'.
